

The McIntosh Gallery Art & Travel Committee presents:

Van Gogh in America

Van Gogh in America: In celebration of its status as the first public museum in the United States to purchase a painting by Vincent van Gogh—Self-Portrait, 1887, which was acquired in 1922—the DIA is organizing the first exhibition dedicated to the introduction of the artist’s work in America. Featuring 65 paintings and works on paper from international collections, the exhibition explores the efforts made by early promoters of modernism in the United States—including dealers, collectors, and the artist’s family—to introduce the artist, his biography, and his artistic production into the American consciousness.

ALSO SEE: Van Gogh’s Artistic Roots: The Hague School and French Realism: this installation presents 12 paintings and works on paper from the DIA’s collection by Dutch and French realist artists, all of whom were contemporaries of Vincent van Gogh, while several of them significantly impacted his early artistic development.

Printmaking in the Twenty-First Century: an exhibition that celebrates exciting artwork by contemporary printmakers. Woodcut and intaglio prints in monumental scale contrast with intimate books for holding in the hands. Finely detailed etchings and engravings contrast with rough and ready screenprints, letterpress and linocuts. While some artists work in Michigan, others work throughout the United States or internationally.
